

THE YARZEH MANSIONS

Two mansions on the hill,
Beirut at their feet

Two stone houses stand on the Yarzeh hillside, above the noise of Beirut and ten minutes from it. Jasmine has found its owners. Daisy remains with a duplex and a triplex, each with a pool and a garden that belong to no one else.

MANSION DAISY

Inside the mansion that remains

Mansion Daisy is one stone house cut into the hillside, and inside it there are only two homes. Daisy I opens at garden level — three suites and a family room stepping onto the lawn, three salons and a fireplace above, made for long evenings. Daisy II climbs three floors to a rooftop suite reached by its own lift. Each has its own pool, its own garden, and the proportions of a house rather than an apartment.

Mansion Jasmine, the project's second mansion, has been sold.

LOCATION & SETTING

Why Yarzeh?

A protected hillside address,
minutes from Beirut

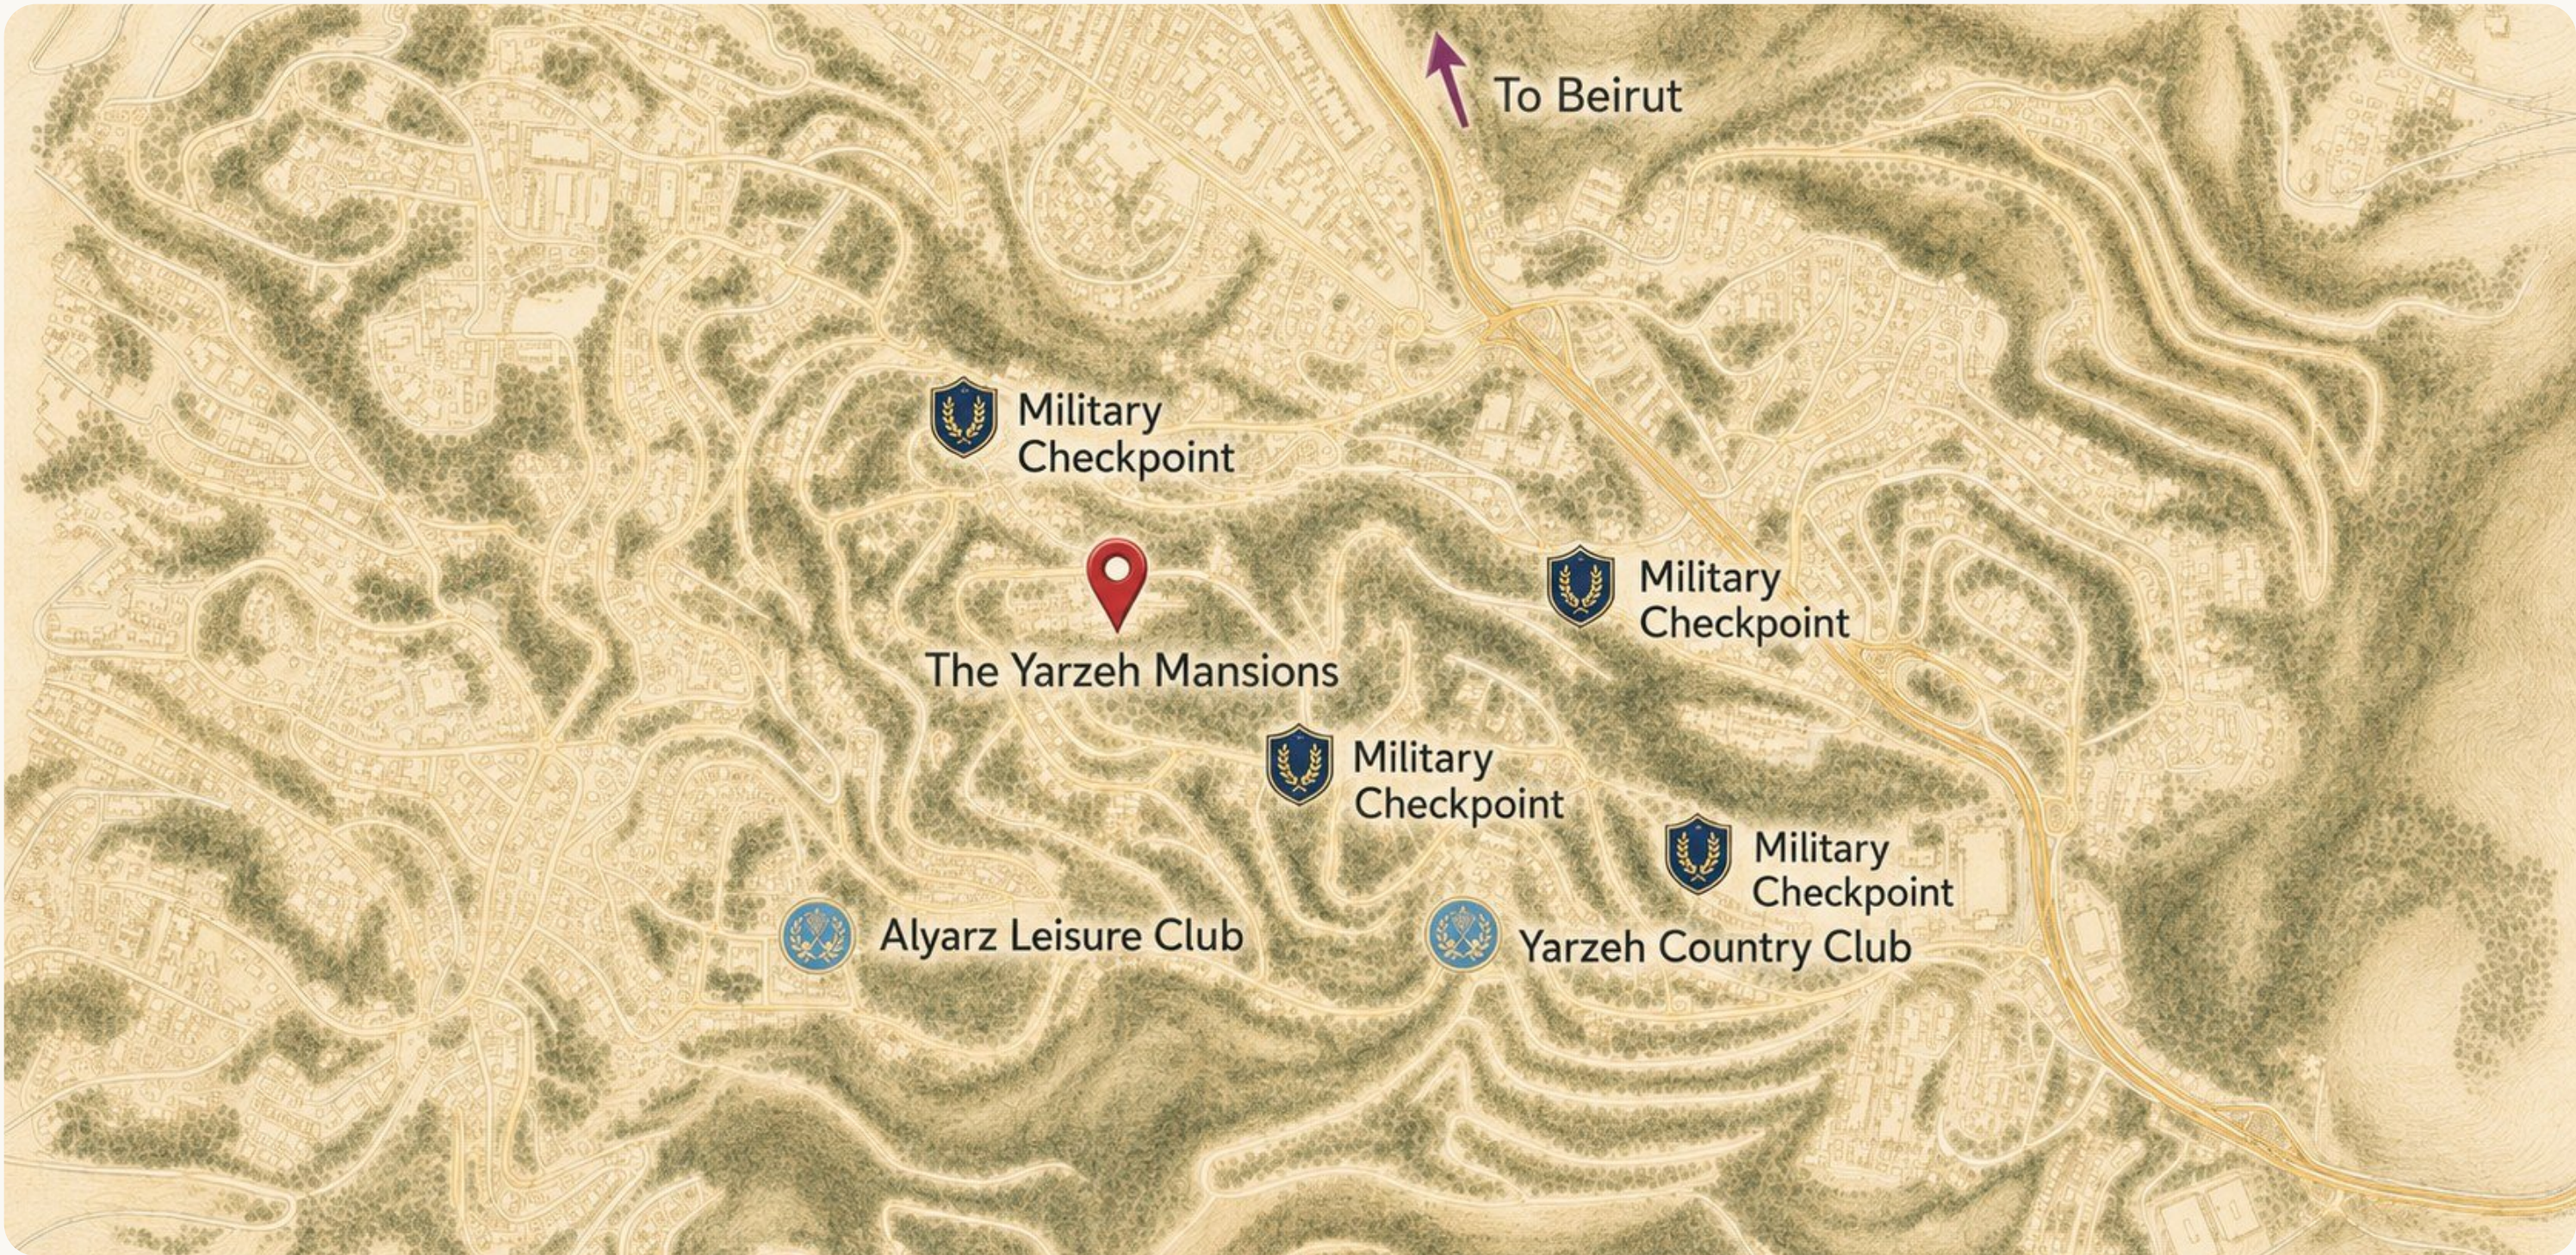

Yarzeh gives the project its strongest advantage: a calm, protected pocket with immediate access to Beirut. Military checkpoint presence and nearby institutions reinforce the area’s discreet residential character, while the elevation opens long views toward the city and sea.
